INTERIORS

Knight turned a small room at the rear of the house into a larder. "It's an important space for me," she says. "I like being able to see everything, to know what I'm running out of." The fireplace is part of the original interior

The bedroom features Marigold wallpaper by William Morris and an antique bed, which Knight had restored. "It's incredibly comfortable, and I find the wallpaper calming." For similar beds, try the Austen range at sofa.com

The open-plan dining area is the heart of the house. "The solid oak table is from the Conran Shop. It was the first thing that Richard and I bought together. We wanted something that could take anything we put on it."

The wall tiles were salvaged from a public loo. "Lots of materials came from salvoweb.com," says Knight. "I fell in love with hexagonal floor tiles after seeing them in New York restaurants." Find similar at mosaictileshop.co.uk

The grade II listed Soho home of Florence Knight is minutes from the Berwick Street Market site of Polpetto, where she is head chef. Knight shares the house with her husband, Richard. The Claude sofa is by Russell Pinch, and the stuffed parrot was a gift from Florence to Richard, from thegetstuffed.co.uk
